Executive Project Dashboard

Situation

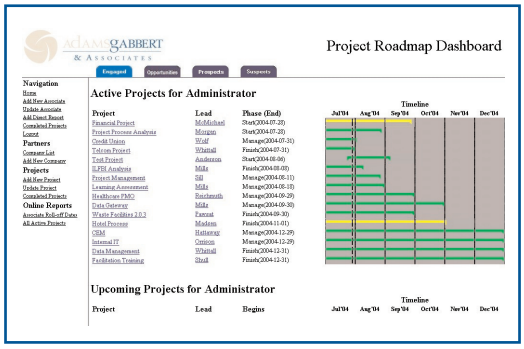
Your project management reports lag behind because of post-task time and budget reporting. Key deadlines are missed. Project responsibility is confusing and budget control suffers. Your current project management process requires one or more full-time employees manually tracking the status of projects and generating spreadsheet status reports and presentations.

Process

Executive Project Dashboard tracks the overall health of a project or portfolio of projects. It's a customized, Web-enabled tool that captures, consolidates and reports project and budget status. It delivers a complete, concise, up-to-date view of every project to everyone in your management chain of command. Based on the drill-down principle, Executive Project Dashboard places all the vital information at the fingertips of the appropriate people at the appropriate level.

Executives are always in touch with current issues, risks and recent accomplishments as well as upcoming projects. Directors have access to project manager reports who in turn have access to individual contributor reports. Individual components are customizable to fit your business, and status reports generally include:

- Hours spent vs. allocated
- Budget spent vs. allocated
- Milestone accountability
- Project components responsibilities
- Issues or risks and how they affect the project's completion date and budget
- Critical milestones for the next seven days



Result

Executive Project Dashboard clients report that first and foremost, projects are accomplished on time and on budget. Employee resources are better deployed and more efficient use of their time is realized from the onset. The proactive nature of Executive Project Dashboard provides enhanced information for decision-making and the increased efficiencies enable everyone in the project management process to handle additional workloads without strain.
